EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

A PETRIFIED body has been found in Augusta, Ga. Its stiffness will prevent its being stolen for a "stiff."

JAMES G. BLAINE! Why, he's all right. A Pittsburgher has seen and talked with him abroad and pronounces him sound physically as a dollar.

EX-TREASURER BAILEY has paid the $70,000 demanded from him into the State Treasury—money which it should not have been necessary for him to pay

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has given up the notion of riding a horse on account of his weight, but that should not disturb him. He can easily get something of his size, say, an elephant.

IT now turns out that this country has a moneyed interest in General Boulanger. A titled foreigner, who married an American heiress, is using her money to further Boulanger's political fortunes.

FROM the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin: "The Bellefonte DAILY NEWS has celebrated its eighth anniversary and starts on its ninth volume with cheering prospects. It is a bright little paper and a credit to its publishers."

NO OTHER man in France can open a fan or remove a lady's cloak in so graceful and charming a way as Gen. Boulanger. Vive le Boulanger! Before we had our doubts of his being a warrior, but now we know he is one—a petticoat warrior.

PAGE county, Virginia, had probably the most unique fire of the season—a house there having been set afire by the burning swallows that flew out of a chimney, and the fire having been put out with hard cider, several barrels of which happened to be at hand.

THE island of Cuba is literally under a reign of terror. The Government that should protect the citizens is in league with the desperate classes. Strange that about the first place settled by the white man should to-day be the least advanced in civilization.

A "COUGHING ghost" is the reigning sensation at Little Falls, N. Y., where two families have vacated a house, because, as they claim, their rest has been disturbed for some time past by a mysterious hacking cough, which cannot in any way be traced to human agency.

COMPLACENT burglars who entered a store in Chicago and secured $1300 from a safe which they forced open, did not waste any surplus energy on the expedition, as they calmly rode from the office to the top of the building in an elevator before making their exit by the roof.

ANOTHER murderer boasted on the scaffold that he was going straight to heaven. Most people have some doubts as to just where they are going when they leave this life, but a murderer never. He has a check that sends him right through to the mansions of the blest.

A DRAFT for one cent was received at the New York Sub-Treasury, Monday, in the mail. It was drawn by a national bank in Bridgeport, Conn., and was on the Chemical National bank, of New York. It was sent to the Sub-Treasury in payment of the balance then against the Bridgeport bank.

SOME of the doctors are trying to prove that the late Senator Conkling's illness and death were not caused by the blizzard. They will find it difficult to establish such proof, and just here it is worthy of record that the DAILY NEWS was the first paper in the country to say that he was a victim of the blizzard

COLONEL (?) J. S. HAMILTON, a Democratic politician murdered R. D. Gambrell, at Brandon, Mississippi, quite a long time ago. Gambrell was the editor of a Prohibition paper. Hamilton has been acquitted of the murder. In Mississippi it is impossible to convict a Democrat of anything, especially a serious crime.

SOCIAL Washington has not taken up the man on horseback as its hero whom political Washington discarded some time ago for the man with boodle Still, as money makes the mare go there may not be so much difference in the preferences of social and political Washington after all.

THE BLAIR EDUCATION BILL NOT DEAD.

Many of the readers of this paper are deeply interested in anything relating to the Blair Educational Bill. At the request of members of the Y. W. C. T. U., we publish this from a writer whose authority on such subjects is unquestioned:

One of the methods of opposition to the Educational Bill was to declare the measure dying or dead, and to suppress all evidence to the contrary as far as possible, while the great debate for it was going on in the United States Senate, and every objection was there being met by southern, as well as northern men, whom this nation honors as wise patriots.

The charm of novelty no longer lingers about its discussion; but senators on the floor, and the crowded galleries listen with wrapt attention to the masterly speech of Senator Evarts, of New York, as he exposes the sophistry of the false claim that it "is unconstutional" for the Federal Government to give of its surplus wealth for the education of the neglected children of our land, who otherwise will grow into a citizenship that will impeal the Government itself.

"What is there," he asked, "in the Constitution that obliges us to bend our front before this invasion of ignorance and debasement confessedly arrayed against freedom and the perpetuity of freedom in this county?" He pointedly delared "that no demarcation" could be found in the Constitution which allowed national appropriations to rivers and harbors and other material wants and left us helpless when looking into the face of great moral, social, and political needs and duties," like the perilous question of illiteracy.

It was a noticable fact, to those who watched the debate that many of the senators who objected to this bill at the same time directly or indirectly added an objection to public schools as such, advocating private, or what they called "parental education" instead. To them, Senator Evarts quited the Pilgrim fathers as saying: "The State cannot suffer anybody to be ignorant while there is in the power of the State the means of wealth and the means of education." "We have arrived at a period," he added, "where the people of this country have made up their minds that there shall be no ignorance where it is in the power of the State; and I may say the United States, to prevent it." The illiterate voter votes on national as well as well as on State questions. Senator Evarts said: "For myself, I do not look with any complacency upon either that political scheme or that personal or social feeling which treats the situation at the South as the situation of the South. It is the situation of the United States, of our country."

This masterly speech closed with these impressive words:

"And now, Mr. President, the great population of the South does not stand still; it has not stood still for two years. It will not stand still for the next year. The tendency from gravitation, without resistance from reason and aim, will go on and on and on; and if education is not to displace this dark cloud of ignorance, then the cloud will grow darker and larger. If ignorance can not be lifted from that low level at which it now rests, it will not stay there, but will go lower and lower, and it will become brutal and savage and hostile to society."

Senator Pugh, of Alabama, in a vigorous speech in defence of the bill, put the objectors in the strong light of merited ridicule, as he referred to their fine spun theories in defence of voting, as they had done repeatedly, for gifts of federal lands to be sold, and the proceeds used for public schools in the northern and western states, and opposing now the gift of money for the same purpose in all needy States. "The plain common-sense people," he said, "will enquire: How is it that our land-money has done good (when used for education) and caused no harm in half a century, and our tax-money is to produce such wide spread ruin and destruction that we are solemnly warned by Senators that it will prove a Trojan horse filled with armed Yankee school marms let loose upon the South ern States to destroy their liberties?"

In answer to the claim that the South does not need this help Senator Pugh quoted: "The Supt. of Public Instruction of Alabama, whose annual report, like that of Supts. of Public Instruction in other Southern States, urges the great need of more money for their public schools, in the fact that the people there, impoverished by war, are taxing themselves to the utmost to furnish the meagre fund that keeps their public schools open scarcely three months per year, in school houses not worthy the name, and for only a fraction of the children."

The last cry against it is the claim that "it will destroy the spirit of self help;" but nobody objects to the Federal appropriations for internal improvements Congress is now making in the way of public buildings in unheard of place, because such gifts from the public treasury would destroy the spirit of "self help" in the people receiving them. Federal aid for the educational improvement of future men and women is equally safe, and far more necessary, in view of the fact that there are now no schools for five twelfths of the school population of this republic.

Applause rang through the crowded galleries as the President of the Senate declared the bill there passed. Then the spectators crowded into the halls. A man among them was hard to say. in confident tones, that showed his opinion was born of the wish 'That's the last of that bill. It goes now to the House Committee on Education, Speaker Carlisle has made that up against it; it's dead and buried there.' The newspapers have echced the same opinion.

But the bill is far from dead. Not all of the old members who were on this Committee in the 49th Congress, and who are appointed to the same post in the 50th are enemies of this bill, and some new and determined men have been added to their number, who will vigorously oppose the old smothering method. Neither the bill nor its friends in or out of Congress are dead, they have no idea of retreating and will soon be heard from again.

The Situation at Braddock.

Affairs at Braddock have reached a crisis which excites unusual interest in this community, and is the subject of comment throughout the country. A few hours longer and the questions at issue will be practically determined one way or the other. The tenacity of purpose displayed by Mr. Carnegie is equaled by the firm determination of the workmen. The action taken by Captain Jones at the direction of Mr. Carnegie will demonstrate which is the stronger of the two.

Nothing that has occurred thus far warrants apprehensions of violence, or a departure from the methods workmen have always relied upon in a prolonged struggle. If sufficient workmen can be obtained to operate the works, the question of supremacy should be regarded as settled.

The employment of Pinkerton men, in view of the uniform good conduct and peaceable bearing of the workingmen, seems altogether unnecessary. It in a manner reflects upon all the men engaged in the representative industrial establishments of this locality, and strengthens erroneous impressions circulated at the time of the railway riots. It has not been demonstrated that the local authorities are not fully equal to all emergencies, while the employment of Pinkerton's police almost invariably has been attended with evil results.

The workmen of Braddock promise they will prove that there is no excuse for the employment of the Pinkerton men. This should be done by all means. Absolute quiet at Braddock this week will be as important a service to the trade-unionists of the country as a victory over the owners of the great mill.

SENATOR FRYE of Maine says that in his judgment Blaine will be renominated and believes he is the strongest man the Republicans have, and that the opinion seems to be gaining ground almost everywhere that James G. Blaine will be the nominee in 1888. Confusion as to other candidates recalls all to Blaine, and while his declination was sincere, as all now believe, he ought to respect the general wish of his party, and we think he will respect it.

JOHN JARRETT has returned from the thickest of the tariff fight, and reports that all is well for the industries of the country. We should like to think so, but we fear very much that it isn't. Never since the war has there been such a determined, systematic and unscrupulous assault upon the tariff as is now progressing, and this fact should not be forgotten for a moment by the friends of our industries.

BOULANGER has reached the Chamber of Deputies and is hailed with acclaim by the hoodlums of Paris. Whether he has the power and disposition to make himself dictator is uncertain. He professes to abhor such a result of his triumph. His policy is said to be to make the French Republic conform more closely to that of the United States.

THE CASE OF ADAM MOYER VS. JOHN AND PETER MOYER.

The supreme court heard argument Thursday afternoon of last week upon an appeal by Adam Moyer from a decree of the common pleas court of this county, dismissing an equity suit which he brought against his sons, John and Peter Moyer. In January, 1882, John Moyer purchased for $1,000 a lot of ground in Philipsburg, and upon this ground a $1,200 dwelling house was built, the entire cost of which was defrayed by Adam Moyer. Adam and his son John lived in the house together, John boarding his father for the rent of the house, and the taxes being divided between them. During all this time the house stood in John Moyer's name, and in January, 1884, he sold it to his brother. A month later his father bought the equity suit against both sons, claiming that he had furnished the money for the original purchase of the lot, John merely acting as his agent, and praying the court to require the defendants to convey the premises to him. The case was referred to a master, who found that Adam Moyer did furnish the funds, but that it was not impressed with a trust. No resulting trust therefore arose, and the father was not entitled to the conveyance. The county court sustained this finding and Adam Moyer then took his appeal to the supreme court. Argument was heard, but decision was reserved.

The Theft of Louisiana.

When Gov. McEnery went back on his pledge that the election should be fair, and declared that in the present contest "the law should be suspended until the danger was past," he set influences and elements at work that made the theft of the State certain. The majority, at last accounts, was estimated at 65,000, and there is danger that, unless the brakes are put on in some way, it will mount up beyond what is necessary or desirable. Under the means employed, it is just as easy to make the majority 100,000 as 10,000. It is only a question of putting figures on paper and manipulating ballots. If, in their zeal, the election officers "go it a little strong," there is a ready explanation in the statement that "the colored voters largely supported the straight Democratic ticket."

There are some facts in connection with this election that will be worth remembering. The pledge made by the Governor that the elections should be fair, was meant to bring his Democratic opponent, Nicholls, to terms. Warmoth says: McEnery was bitter over his defeat for the nomination, and that he (Warmoth) was encouraged to make the canvass as a Republican candidate by a personal assurance from the Governor, in the presence of Gen. McMillen, that he would carry out his pledge in good faith. The reason why he violated his agreement was this: The Nicholls managers knew that a fair election would elect Warmoth, and they placated McEnery with a promise that he should be appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court of the State to fill a vacancy already practically existing.

A leading Democratic paper of Louisiana, in speaking of Gov. McEnery's change of purpose, denounced him for having drawn the color line and appealed to the whitemen of the State to defeat the Republican candidates, by fair or foul means. Warmoth openly charges the Governor with having sent out to his returning officers in Northern Louisiana the following directions over his own signature: "Warmoth is developing too much strength; see to it that your parish is returned strongly Democratic at all hazards." With the whole election machinery in the hands of the State Administrations, and with the Governor ready to condone any crime that might be committed pursuant to his order, it was an easy matter to steal the State. It will be interesting to watch and see whether McEnery will receive the reward of his shameless treachery.

THE name of Chas. Emory Smith, editor of the Philadelphia Press, is mentioned as a delegate at large to the Chicago Convention. Mr. Smith represents the Blaine sentiment of the State and his selection would be an eminently fitting one. Whether Blaine shall or shall not be the candidate, the man nominated at Chicago, if not the Plumed Knight, should be one as nearly like him as it is possible to find, and an exponent of the protection sentiment of the party. Mr. Smith himself being a representative of that principle will be a good man to send as a delegate at large from Pennsylvania.

ENTERTAINMENTS FOR THE PEOPLE.

There are a few things which appear queer to us. They are based in what we conceive to be incorrect understanding of facts.

We do not wish anyone to attend dramatic entertainments who have the least objection to them. We respect such people for staying away. But do not be deceived.

The last dramatic entertainment given in this place was a model of propriety. But we heard a gentlemen who had not been to it class it with objectionable entertainments. The same gentleman attended another entertainment given under the auspices of a religious society and we suppose found nothing wrong in it.

We attended, in our professional capacity, both entertainments. The remark we had heard made us observant. We heard nothing objectionable at the drama, but in the recitations given by the elocutionist we heard one—possibly two—selections which have a tendency to do harm. We refer to the sermon which he recited from the text:

> Old Mother Hubbard went to her cupboard
> To get her poor dog a bone
> When she got there the cupboard was bare
> So the poor dog had none."

The text was not a sacred one, but the tendency of the sermon was to cast ridicule upon sacred things. Even if some ministers, in their manner of delivery or other details, are peculiar—even ridiculous—it is not well to make sport of them, because of the office they fill and the subjects of which they treat.

We do not like a joke which has for its point anything sacred. We should hold the Word of God in the highest veneration and esteem. His appointed agents on earth, the ministers (if not for themselves, at least for their office) should command our respect. The greatness of God, His perfections; His infinite condescension—all these should compell us to abbor all trifling with what belongs to Him. Therefore, we disparage such recitations as "The Sermon."

The remark of the gentleman led us to write this. There are decidedly objectionable entertainments brought to Bellefonte, but the pure and elevated fun given by the last one was far less hurtful than the exercises which arso generally approved. It is well for us to consider all such things philosophically anddiscriminatingly, and to commend where commendation is possible, and condemn wherever it is necessary.

TWELVE HOUSES BURNED.

A second destructive conflagration occurred at Marysville, Perry county, Saturday morning. Twelve houses were destroyed. The fire broke out at a few minutes past 2 o'clock and made such rapid headway that an entire block and another building on the opposite side of the street were burned to the ground. The large planing mill was also burned. The town is without any protection whatever, having no fire apparatus by which the citizens could battle with the flames. The town was visited by a similar conflagration about fifteen months ago.

The fire started on the roof of H. A. Fisher's residence, and is supposed to have originated from an engine spark. The flames spread rapidly and soon communicated to the extensive planing mill adjoining. The Fisher residence was one of a row of four frames, all of which were destroyed. The double dwellings of Mr. Collier, B. Flickinger, C. Straw and the residence of Mrs. Rathfon, together with the stable and storage house belonging to Mr. Fisher. The fire was discovered by one of the watchman at the roundhouse and every effort was made to bring the flames under control. A light wind prevailed which greatly interfered with the bucket brigade in their heroic efforts. The loss is estimated at $28,000 with an insurance of about $12,000.

THE governor of the Mexican state of Guanajuato has issued a proclamation suppressing bull fights on the ground that they are demoralizing and cruel and foster habits of extravagance among the people. This is a cheering sign of progress.

THE bill to retire John C. Fremont, with the rank of major general, reported in the senate on Thursday, should pass. John C. Fremont in his old age deserves the substantial gratitude of his country. His services are worthy recognition.

Poetry.

Rev. Spider's Reverie Over the Contribution Box.

Two spiders—so the story goes—
Upon a living bent,
Entered a meeting-house one day,
And were hopefully heard say,
"Here we shall have at least fair play,
With nothing to prevent."

Each chose his place and went to work;
The light webs grew apace;
One on the sofa spun his thread,
But shortly came the sexton dread
And swept him off, and so, half dead,
He sought another place.

"I'll try the pulpit next," said he;
"There surely is a prize;
The desk appears so neat and clean,
I'm sure no spider there has been;
Besides, how often have I seen
The pastor brushing flies!"

He tried the pulpit, but alas!
His hopes proved visionary;
With dusting-brush the sexton came
And spoiled his geometric game,
Nor gave him time nor space to claim
The right to sanctuary.

At length, half starved and weak,
He sought his former neighbor,
Who now had grown so sleek and round,
He weighed the fraction of a pound,
And looks as if the art had found
Of living without labor.

"How is it, friend?" he asked, "that I
Endure such thumps and knocks
While you have grown so very gross?"
"'Tis plain" he answered, "not a loss
I've met with since I spun across
The contribution box."

The Two Workingmen.

OR, WHAT THEY DRANK.

Two workers in one field
Toiled on from day to day,
Both had the same hard labor,
Both had the same small pay,
With the same blue sky above,
The same green grass below,
One soul was full of love,
The other full of woe.

One leaped up with the light,
With the soaring of the lark;
One felt it over night,
For his soul was ever dark.
One heart was hard as stone,
One heart was ever gay,
One worked with many a groan,
One whistled all the day.

One had a flower clad cot
Beside a merry mill,
Wife and children near the spot,
Made it sweeter still.
One a wretched hovel had,
Full of discord, dirt, and din,
No wonder he seemed mad,
Wife and children starved within.

Still they worked in the same field.
Toiled on from day to day,
Both had the same hard labor,
Both had the same small pay;
But they worked not with one will,
The reason let me tell—
Lo! the one drank at the still,
And the other at the well!

Our Story Teller'

How Bob went Over the Falls.

BY WILLIAM O. STODDARD.

The boat in which Rob Norris decided to make his trip over Niagara Falls was built like a yawl. It was not so very sharp, but was wide and deep and buoyant. It was ever so much better for the purpose than a barrel or a suit of blown-up India-rubber, or than any kind of diving armor. He intended to use oars, and he rigged a mast and sail forward, for he meant to make the trip on some day when the wind should be blowing strongly down the river. What he most relied upon to steady the boat was his drag-board. This was made of two boards, each twelve feet long and one foot wide nailed together at the edges so that it all looked like four yards of a woolen gutter. He fitted two iron rings into the edge of one board, They were six feet apart, and when a rope was put through the rings and fastened to the stern of the boat, it was plain that the drag-board would drag tremendously.

"You don't mean to take along any provisions, do you?" asked Jim Hooker.

"Of course not," said Rob. "It's one of those things that don't take a great while to do."

"And you won't need any lantern," said Jim, "unless you drift into the cave under the falls after you get down. Do you s'pose you will?"

"No," said Rob, "there isn't any danger of that. All I want is to go over steady, and come down right side up. It's too misty there to see anything, lantern or no lantern. The river runs right along, and the boat 'll go out with the river."

"I'd take a lantern if I was going," said Jim. "Everybody ought to have a canoe or something when they're going into a strange place."

Rob thought about it, and concluded that, after all, he had better have some lunch put up, but that there wouldn't be any place around the bottom of the falls dry enough to scratch a match on, and so a candle would be of no use. It was better, too, to go barefooted than to wear rubbers, and a tin dipper was worth more than a sponge to bail the boat with, if any water should come in.

Of course everybody knew that Rob was going over the falls, and some people talked against it, and said there was too much risk in it. Rob himself thought that there might be some, and he expected to get wet, but he had a great deal of confidence in his drag-board. When the day came, and the trip was to be made, all the boys were at the landing, just as Rob expected. It was perfectly natural that they should come, and that all of them shoud feel disappointed because he would not let them have seats with him in the boat; but they ought not to have called him stingy, nor to have said that he wanted to have his ride, and the falls too, all to himself. What he really was afraid of was that if one of them came along, especially Jim Hooker, he might be all the while meddling with the drag-board and disturbing the balance of the boat, so that she would go over the falls well.

As for other people, it was just as Jim Hooker had said that it would be: everybody that lived within twenty miles was there. Both banks of the river swarmed with them—men, women, and children. Rob counted fourteen Sunday-schools, banners and all, and some Turnvereins, and a Shutzenfest, and a free-labor procession, and an association for the improvement of general information, besides a militia regiment and some fire-companies. All along the bank of the river people had built great wooden stair platforms, to let out seats at ten cents each, and they were all full, and Rob wished that they had to divide the profits with him. Considering that he was the boy that was to go over the falls, it would have been exactly the fair thing, and would have given him no end of pocket money.

The moment Rob set the boat loose and pulled out from shore, people began to cheer and wave their handkerchiefs, and the militia regiment fired a salute.

Rob threw over his drag-board, put up the sail, and began to row hard right down-stream. The rapids carried the boat along so swiftly that everybody cheered again. At the same time the sail and the rowing kept the boat going a little faster than the rapids, so that the drag-board away out behind, more than six feet from the stern of the boat, had a fair chance to drag and to keep things perfectly steady.

Rob had never before felt so proud in all his life, for he knew he was beating all the men that ever jumped over from anywhere into anything. It would surely make him famous forever, and every boy in the world is anxious to become a great man, and have all sorts of things said about him, and have his name in the papers.

The boat swam spendidly, and the wind blew harder and harder, and the falls reared louder as they came nearer; that is, as Rob and his experiment came nearer to them.

The crowds along the shore took a deep interest and cheered a great deal, and several boys tried to see if they could throw stones as far out as the boat was. Two of them succeeded, and the stones they threw came right into the boat, but they didn't happen to hit Rob. He knew that all great men have stones thrown at them, and he didn't mind it.

The falls roared louder, the wind blew harder, the water ran swifter, the drag-board worked better and better, and Rob was sure he saw a rainbow in the mist ahead of him.

"There's the edge!" he shouted, as he took in his oars and turned around. "I must be looking ahead when I go over, or I sea'n't see what's coming."

It was the last chance for the boys on shore, and some of them threw stones with all their might, but they missed their aim, and had nothing whatever to brag of.

"Now for it!" shouted Bob, as the boat shot clean out from the edge of the falls with the impetus she had gathered all the way, and with the force of the wind upon the sail.

It was just as he had expected. The water kept hold of the drag-board, and it took the boat down nicely all the way, with the face of the great falls about four feet behind the stern. If it had not been for the drag-board the boat would have either tipped over or gone down endwise and spilled Bob out. At it was, she came down into the water at the bottom steadily and evenly, as buoyant as a cork, and shot away down-stream. Bob felt prouder than ever for just one moment, while he thought of how great a man it would make him; but the drag-board began to pull a little too strongly, and there was so dark a fog he wished he had followed Jim Hooker's advice and brought a candle or a lantern. It drew and it drew, and it was pulling him in under the falls. The water began to come down right on his face and into his mouth, and just as he was grasping and choking he heard Jim Hooker exclaim:

"Well, Bob Norris, the bell's just rung to let out school. Never knew you to sleep so hard before. Took a whole spongeful to start your eyes open."

"Guess 'twas the arithmetic did it," said Bob, rubbing his eyes; "but there must have been a quart of water in that sponge."—Harper's Young People.

THE name of Judge Sadler, of Cumberland county, is looming up conspicuously as a candidate for the supreme court. He is an able judge and a fine man. His nomination would give the republican party a candidate who would be a worthy leader and the supreme bench a judge who would worthily sustain the dignity and learning of the bench.

CIRCULARS comes from the South favoring the nomination for Vice President by the Republicans of Hon. W. O. Bradley, of Kentucky, who certainly did make a good race for Governor of that State.

The Druggist's Colored Jars.

While a reporter was talking with an uptown druggist the other evening a little fellow clad in a blue suit, entered and bought a postage stamp he said:

"Say, mister, what do you put in them big jars in the window?"

"Colored water," replied the druggist, smiling, and when the little fellow had gone he added: "Every now and then some little child asks us about those globes."

"Well, I am curious myself. What is the full recipe?" said the reporter.

"Those used by the better class of druggists," replied the druggist, "are, in reality, composed of mixtures of chemicals. Some use bottles of colored glass filled with water, but these do not reflect the light from the gas jets as the chemicals do. For red, the most common of all, we mix iodine and iodide of potassium with water. Some add alcohol to prevent freezing. Blue is formed by a mixture of sulphate, of copper, commonly called blue vitriol, and water of ammonia. Plain bichromate of potash in water forms the yellow coloring, and green is made by a mixture of the blue and yellow, or else from nickel dissolved in nitric acid. A pretty crimson color may be made by combining alkanet root and oil of turpentine, and lilac is the result of a mixture of crude oxide of cobalt and nitric acid. Royal purple, one of the prettiest of the window colors, is made by dissolving logwood or cochineal in ammonia or sulphate of indigo. Pink is nitrate of cobalt and sesquicarbonate of ammonia, and amber is formed of one part of dragon's blood and four of oil of vitriol, filtered and mixed with water. Of course, all sorts of combinations of these colors may be made, and other shades produced, but those which I have named are the principal ones in use. The first thing a druggist does on starting in business is to buy the chemicals needed for his bottles. They are an important item in the equipment of his store."

A Fine Map.

From the Harrisburg Call.

A reporter was shown recently a military map, that is to accompany Adjutant General Hastings' report. And for its completeness in locating the military organizations of the State, could not be excelled. Colonel Robert L. Orr, the efficient clerk to the military band, is credited with the valuable improvements made, and which will make it an interesting adjunct to the report. By the way, in speaking of the colonel, one would scarcely believe that twenty-five years ago he was a dashing and fearless soldier boy, he then commanding the gallant Sixty-first Pennsylvania Volunteers.

When the cares of office duties do not weigh too heavily upon him, he loves to tell of the daring deeds performed by his boys, as he calls them, and recite the many narrow escapes he himself has made from rebel bullets, and still worse from capture and rebel prisons.

The flags of the Sixty-first in the flag room bear silent testimony to the severe ordeal through which they passed. Their bullet riddled folds and shattered staffs speak volumes of heroic valor, through which they were borne to victory and defeat. And many a gallant fellow sacrificed his life beneath their sacred folds, that not one star, on the blue azure field should dim the glory of the gallant Sixty-first. The Colonel's regiment stands first on the official list of officers killed and fourth on the list of men killed during the war.

Fogg has just been presented to a young lady whose diction was precise and her demeanor modest, without shyness. The two fell to speaking of a country place with which they were both somewhat acquainted.

"Yes," said Fogg," I remember the building perfectly; "a grist mill, I should say."

"Not when I saw," replied the maiden; "it was a shoe manufactory. But," she added, "probably it was a mill formerly, for I remember the river was damned near it." It sounded so like profanity that Fogg would have fainted had not the true meaning of the words dawned upon his intelligence at the critical moment.

Use of Lightning Rods.

Noted Electrician—I see you still have that old notion that a lightning rod is a protection.

Nebraska Farmer—I have.

"Well, of course, you don't keep up with the electrical progress of the age and can't be expected"—

"I take half a dozen newspapers and three magazines, including The Electrical Review, sir."

"You do? Well, well! Now, sir, if that is the case will you be kind enough to tell me what you think a lightning rod on your house protects you from?"

"Lightning rod agents."

SHE WAS NOT PREPARED.—"Are you prepared for death?" the clergyman asked, with a tremor of emotion in his voice as he took the sick woman's hand in his own. A shade of patient thought crossed the invalid's face, and by-and-by she said "she didn't hardly believe she was; there was the little bedroom carpet to be taken up yet, and and the paint up-stairs had hardly been touched, and she did want to put up new curtains in the dining-room; but she thought if she didn't die until next Monday, she would be about as near it as a woman with a big family and no girl ever expected to be!" That woman got well.

CULINARY SAWS FROM "TABLE TALK."

All flesh is not venison.
Hunger is never delicate.
Turtle makes all men equal.
Many dishes bring many diseases.
The knife doesn't make the cook.
Even sugar may spoil a good dish.
Man's greatest enemy is his stomach.
Cheerful looks make every dish a feast.
A good dinner is better than a fine coat.
Two poverties will keep but a thin table.
Rich food and heavy groans go together.
Where hunger commands, valor must obey.
Never carry two watermelons under one arm.
Hunger's my cook and labor brings me meat.
The dinner ended we value no more the spoon.
He that's full takes no care for him that's fasting.
What's a joint of mutton or two in a whole Lent?
A fish in the milk is strong circumstantial evidence.
Trust the cat when the buttermilk is on the top shelf.

The Great Question in Europe.

It appears to be: Does Boulanger intend to be Dictator? While it is true that he wholly and totally disavows the harboring of any such purpose, it is equally true that the disavowal does no satisfy. It is a fact significant or not, that all, or nearly all, of those who would be glad to have the Republic overthrown are among his supporters. There is a scarcely disguised sympathy for him among the Bonapartists. The greater part of the conservative element is against him, and there is a fear abroad that he may mean mischief, notwithstanding his unqualified professions of devotion to the Republic and the peace of France. In Germany Boulangerism is regarded as revolution, disorder. The similarity of Boulanger's language in ridiculing the idea that he means to make himself Dictator is suspiciously like that of Louis Napoleon in 1848. There is genuine uneasiness, the wisest fear with too much reason. What is particularly observable is Boulanger's confidence, his complete command, not only of a great body of Frenchmen, but of himself—three things which go some distance in determining what manner of man he is.

SIBILANT SILLINESS.

Sweet Sarah Sawyer's sickly sister Susan sat singing softly. Squire Samson Seward's son Sam strolled smoking, sorrowfully seeking sweet Susan. Suddenly spying sad Susan sitting singing, Sam slouched slowly, stealing sunflowers, scaring sweet Sarah. Susan, starting, screeched:

"Sam stop stealing sunflowers; seek some stale sandwiches."

Sam seized several, swallowed seven, sank slowly, sighing, "So seasick."

Sweet Sarah sauntered slowly. Seeing Sam so seasick, said;

"Sister Susan, sprinkle some salts."

She sprinkled some salts, singing sweet songs. Sam survived, squeezed Susan. She sobbed silently. Sam said:

"Susan stop sobbing."

She stopped, shivered, sneezed suddenly; so suddenly Sam shuddered. Somewhat startled, said Susan:

"Sweet Sam, sing, sing some sad Sunday school songs."

Sam sang successfully.

He was Trained.

"Did you read about that cyclone in Illinois?"

"Yes. It must have been a horrible affair."

"Did you ever see a cyclone?"

"No; but I can imagine what it would be like."

"How?"

"My wife has three sisters visiting her."

"You ought not to have punished the boy so severely," he said, reprovingly, to the woman. "The dog belongs to a neighbor, and, besides, tying a kettle to a dog's tail is not such a wicked thing for a boy to do." "The kettle belonged to me," said the woman, still mad.

THE work goes on. The Philadelphia Record has read Randall out of the Democratic party and now the Washington Post reads the New York Sun out of the party. If this reading out continues, the democracy will be left without brains entirely.

DEMOCRATIC Congressman Foran, of Cleveland, says in a letter that he is unalterably opposed to the Mills bill because it is a direct attack upon the principle of American Protection.

A Printer's Dream.

A printer sat in his office chair, his boots were patched and his coat threadbare, and his face looked weary and worn with care. While sadly thinking of busines debts, old Morpheus slowly around him crept, and before he knew, he suddenly slept; and while sleeping, he dreamed that he was dead, from trouble and toil his spirit had fled, and that not even a cow-bell tolled for the peaceful rest of his cow-hide sole. As he wandered among the shades, that smoke and scorch in lower hades, he shortly observed an iron door, that creakingly swung on hinges ajar, but the entrance was closed with a red-hot bar, and Satan himself stood peeping out, and watching for travelers thereabout, and thus to the passing printer spoke: "Come in, my dear, it shall cost you nothing, and never fear, this is the place where I cook the ones who never pay their subscription sums, for though in life they may escape, they will find when dead, it is too late; I will show you the place where I melt them thin with red-hot chains and scraps of tin, and also where I comb their head with broken glass and melted lead, and if of refreshments they only think, there's boiling water for them to drink; there's the red-hot grindstone to grind down their toes and if they mention they don't like fire, I'll sew up their mouths with red-hot wire, and then, dear sir, you should see them squirm while I turn them over and cook to a turn." With these last words the printer awoke, and thought it all a practical joka, but still at times so real did it seem, that he cannot believe it was all a dream, and often he thinks with a chuckle and grin, of the fate of those who save their tin, and never pay the printer.

KIND WORDS.

There is a power in kindness, compared with which both law and gospel are as weak as ropes of sand. The following is an illustration of how an intemperate man was saved by kindness:—

We will call him, Jim, for we do not remember his name. He had lost all respectability, and was a common gutter drunkard. His family had disowned him, and would not recognize him when they met him. Occasionally he would get a job at the stables where Dr. D. kept his horses. One morning the Doctor laid his hand on Jim's shoulder and said:—

"Jim, I wish you would give up the drink."

There was something like a quiver of the man's lips as he answered:—

"If I thought you cared, I would, but there is a great gulf between you and me."

"Have I made any gulf, Jim? Think a moment before you answer."

"No—you—haven't."

"If you had been a millionaire, could I have treated you more like a gentleman?"

"No, you couldn't."

"I do care, Jim."

"Say it again, won't you?" There were tears in the man's eyes now.

"I do care, Jim," with a tender little emphasis on the Jim.

"Dr. D., I'll never touch another drop of liquor as long as I live. Here's my hand on it."

This was fifteen years ago, and "Jim" is to-day the respectable and respected Mr.—. Saved by a kind word!

Mrs. Logue's Hen Lays Pictorial Eggs.

Baltimore Sun.

Mrs. Catherine Logue, of 104 Concord street, is the possessor of an erratic hen whose vagaries are the talk of the neighborhood. The hen began laying eggs during Holy Week, all of which were marked in some peculiar way, such as forms of snail shells, snakes, and on separate occasions the letters C and G. On Good Friday the egg was marked with a correct representation of a lamb in repose, and Mrs. Logue guarded it carefully until last Saturday, when her son, in showing it, accidentally dropped the treasure, and it was broken. Almost every egg is marked with something familiar. Yesterday the egg was a perfect representation of a brawny arm and shoulder, and if there had been a hammer in the hand it would have suggested that the flippant hen had been considering the picture on a labor voting ticket. After Easter she laid an egg with a perfect limb of a woman upon it, which had all the artistic contour of sculptured marble and a foot as dainty as a fairy's. It even had the extent of hosiery and the garter mark about it. This hen will not lay her eggs anywhere but on the kitchen lounge, and if she is in the yard she will peck at the window until admitted.

Bobbie was lonesome, and Minnie was quietly playing with her doll, an employment in which Bobby had vainly sought diversion. "Mamma," sighed Bobby, "I wished I owned the whole world." "She whole world? What would you do wit it, darling?" "I'd trade Minnie's dol for a pup."

ALL SORTS.

Spring novelties—Fine days.

A host in himself—The landlord.

Perspiration never rains—It simply pores.

Much adieu about nothing—A woman's farewell.

There are no rounds of drinks in the ladder of success.

Time flies and stays for no man. The only fellow who can beat it is the musician.

Teacher—"What is lava?" Junior Girl—"What men put on their faces when shaving."

It is thought funny the fellow who gets off his base never gets on to the even tenor of his way.

Mamma—"And who dwelt in the garden of Eden, Freddie?" Freddie—"Oh, I know; the Adamses!"

Agent (at the door)—"Is the lady of the house in?" Gentleman (calling to his wife): "Mary, is the cook in?"

The philosopher says. "Wise men hesitate." Perhaps that is why so few men are in any haste to pay their bills.

"Try Smith's coffins and caskets" is the cheerful sign boldly painted on a big rock in the suburbs of Raleigh, Cal.

"Who is that man?" "He's a servant of old Smith, the undertaker." "Ah! then he the valet of the shadow of death."

"May I help you to alight?" said a young man to a lady about to leave the railway car. "No, thanks," said she. "I don't smoke.

"Papa, what is patrimony?" it is what is inherited from a father, my dear." "Oh—and then is matrimony something inherited from the mother?"

Friend, What impression did Scribble's last novel leave on your mind? Rival Author—None whatever; but it left one of fifteen hundred copies on the publisher's hands, I hear.

Among the quoted excerpts from Senator Ingalls' speech in this: "Pluck a few plums from the dazzling tail of his imagination and stick them into the wings of his judgment."

"Tommy," said his aunt, "I hear your grandmother gave you a watch on your birthday. Was it a hunting-case watch?" "No," replied Tommy, who is 7 years old, "it was a barefaced watch."

A health writer says: "The washtub is an excellent gymnasium." But will our young ladies tackle kindly to it? As Mr. Bacon says in Shakespeare's works, "Aye, there's the rub."

"Nothing is more pernicious than the habit of contracting debts," remarked a father to his spendthrift son. "Don't you think expanding them is a little worse?" asked the latter.

When a young man in Patagonia wants a wife he rides out and lassoes one, but in this country when a girl wants a husband, and her fellow dosen't come to time, the lass-sues him for a breach of promise.

"Look here," said a man to a newspaper writer: "I think you ought to stop printing nonsense about the deleterious effects of cigarettes." "Indeed! Do you think them harmless?" "Oh, no; but such publications injure my business." "Ah! What is your business!" "I am an undertaker."

Countryman: "Fi' pounds too much for him? He's a won'erful good sportin' daug, sir! Why, he come to a dead pint in the street, sir, close ag'in' a ol' gen'l'man, the other day—fust o' September it was, sir—an' the gen'leman told me arterwards as his name was "Partridge'!" Customer—"You don't say so?" Bargain struck.—Punch.

"You can't add different things together," said a teacher in one of the New York public schools. "If you add a sheep and cow together it does not make two sheep or two cows." A little boy, who was the son of a Harlem milkman, held up his hand and said: "That may do with sheep and cows, but add a quart of milk and a quart of water, it makes two quarts of milk. I've seen it done more'n a thousand times."—Texas Siftings.

A Paper Collar that Cost $125.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

"One's wants are one's needs," has been said, but paper collars at $125 each are not now regarded as necessities. Still, that amount has been paid for one of these almost absolute articles of male attire, and Major D. W. Sanders enjoys the the reputation of having broken the record by his purchase. It was during the war, and Major Sanders, then an officer in the Confederate army, was in Tennessee. He received a month's pay, $150, in Confederate bills, and then discovered that he needed a clean collar. He found a man who had a spare paper collar and began negotiations, but the happy possessor of the article did not want to part with it. After some trouble however, he persuaded the owner to sell, but only when $125 had been offered. It is difficult, however, to estimate what the cost of a clean shirt would have been about that time, even when the quotations of paper collars are given.

A pen may be driven, but a pencil does the best when it is lead.

The New First Reader.

"Is it night?"

"Yes, it is night. The sun has sunk out of sight in the direction of Chicago, and darkness covers the face of the land."

"Who is this hurrying along the street?"

"He is a reporter for a daily paper."

"What has he get?"

"Only a small item of news, but it will lead to great results. He has taken the fact from the police blotter that John Jobwock has been arrested for stealing a pair of shoes."

"But didn't John steal 'em?"

"Oh, yes; but every John Jobwock in town who didn't steal 'em will bring a libel suit against the newspaper.

"For why?"

"Because their reputations are so tender that they must prove their innocence to the public."

"And will they get a verdict?"

"Yes, if it happens to be the right court—one in which twelve idiots are sitting as a jury."

"Do you see the man?"

"Yes, I see the man."

"Is he alone?"

"No, he is not alone. There is a boy with him."

"Where are the man and boy?"

"In the basement of a store."

"Are they burglars?"

"Oh, no. One of them is the owner of the grocery."

"It is a cold night, and are they afraid the vegetables will be frozen?"

"That's where you are left. They are making the supply of 'new maple sugar' for to-morrow."

"Is Vermont maple sugar made in Vermont?"

"Yes, my son—in a barn."

She Climbs Like a Cat.

Among the inmates of the House for Feeble-Minded Children in South Boston there is a little ten-year-old girl whose case has thus baffled the best authorities on mental diseases. Her peculiar trait is her inordinate desire to climb to the top perch on any object, be it ever so high, to mount and balance herself on seemingly inaccessible ledges, and there rest content. On entering a room, and knowing she is unobserved, she will fling open a door and catching hold of the edge with her hands, and pressing her knees lightly together climb to the top and seat herself, wholly unconcerned, and apparently perfectly happy. She will swing back and forth with no fear of falling; indeed, she has never been known to lose her balance.

Her most troublesome trait is her strong aversion to wearing any clothing. She discards her shoes and stockings whenever possible, tears off her garments and causes no end of care to the patient attendants, who find her from time to time almost devoid of covering. She frequently climbs with wonderful agility upon a wardrobe, twelve feet high, or again will mount to the top shelf and there coil herself up like a cat. She has been known to ascend an eighteen foot pillar supporting the ceiling and roost upon its ledge. One night she left her bed and deliberately climbed down the spouting from the fourth story to the street. She has never injured herself. Her parents are both strong mentally and physically.

—There are two young men in Snow Shoe who should inaugurate the reform of paying their board bill when they are away from home. The Lock Haven Express relates that these individuals left an unpaid board bill behind them in that place and attempted to enter the train on the Beech Creek road. They were arrested by Chief Westbrook and lodged in jail until Friday morning, when they had a hearing before Alderman Harris. The gentleman to whom the men owed the board bill was present, and they arranged the matter satisfactory and were discharged. Both of the young fellows carried revolvers.

COOPER AND ANDREWS.

HOW THE CHAIRMANSHIP ELECTION WAS SETTLED.

HARRISBURG, April 24.—There has been very little change in the political situation since last night, except that all the delegates have arrived. Who shall be the nominee for judge is no better known now than it was last night. The chances of the nomination of Judge Sadler for the supreme court seem to have improved and the confidence of his friends has increased. So far as can be seen Judge Mitchell's strength has not increased. It is generally accepted that Senator Quay, Adjutant General Hastings and Leeds will be sent to Chicago as delegates-at-large. From the western end of state the choice lies between Nelson P. Reed, of the Pittsburgh Commercial, and Henry W. Oliver, jr.

The convention will organize by electing Samuel H. Miller, of Mercer, temporary chairmain, and Jacob M. Campbell, of Cambria, for permanent chairman.

The platform will embody the following declarations: For the direct tax bill now pending in congress to repay the states for taxes paid directly from the state treasuries during the war; for the dependent pension bill; endorsing the high license bill; reasserting the party's purpose to submit a prohibition amendment to the constitution to a vote of the people.

HARRISBURG, April 24.—In the republican caucus this evening Senator Quay presented the following resolution which he said had agreed upon by all parties interested, and which would, he thought, relieve the convention of grave difficulty and the party of embarrasment·

Resolved, That hereafter the terms of members of the state committee shall commence on the first of January succeeding their election and continue for one year; that W. H. Andrews shall be and is hereby elected chairman of the state committee to be appointed by this convention, and that Thomas V. Cooper, the present chairman, his secretaries and the members of the state committee be continued in office until the first of January next.

Mr. Chadwick, of Delaware, said: "As that resolution embodies all that Senator Cooper or his friends have asked for I heartily second the motion."

Senator Delamanter then claimed the attention of the chair. He said: "As one who advocated the election of Mr. Andrews it is but proper that I should say something upon this question. Having urged Mr. Andrew's selection, not with a view to cause any strife in the party, we have been somewhat loth to accept this compromise. Coming as it does, however, from such a distinguished source as the gentleman from Beaver, from whose wise counsel the republican party has achieved many of its victories of last years, I am glad to accept the resolution."

The resolution was then adopted by a unanimous vote.

We have sold out our entire stock of hardware and good will to Messrs. H. A. McKee & Bro., who have taken possession of the same and will continue the hardware business at the same stand. Therefore upon retiring from business we desire to extend our thanks to our many friends, who have favored us with their patronage, while we were in business. We take pleasure in recommending to our former patrons our successors in business, feeling assured that by continuing to deal with them, they will not only find it to their advantage, but will be fairly and honestly dealt with.

H. K. HICKS & BRO.

Notice.

You will notice through the columns of this paper, Messrs. H. K. Hicks & Bro's announcement of the purchase of their hardware stock and good will by us. We expect to carry on the business at the same place, and to try to please the general public, and we take this opportunity of saying, while we acknowledge that we are not as yet experienced hardware men, we have them in our employ and don't propose that we will be undersold for a corresponding quality of goods, and we have added largely to our stock and have to-day the finest line of hardware in the county. We respectfully solicit your patronage, promising to do our utmost to please you, as we think we can do. Respectfully, Expressions of Sympathy.

At a special meeting of Local Assembly, No. 2333, K. of L., on April 21st, 1888, the following expressions of sympathy were adopted:

WHEREAS. In his great wisdom the Almighty God has been pleased to remove from our midst and called to his eternal reward our fellow laborers and respected brothers, Lawrence O'Leary and Andrew Crozier, therefore,

Resolved. That in the demise of our brothers we recognize that our community has lost two of its most respected and esteemed citizens; Local Assembly, 2333, K. of L., two worthy and faithful members; their wives devoted husband, and their children kind and affectionate fathers.

Resolved. That we express our deep feelings of sympathy for their families in this trying hour of their affliction.

Resolved, That our charter be draped in blck for a period of thirty days in token of respect for our two deceased brothers.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the weekly papers of Bellefonte and a copy of said resolutions be sent to each family of our deceased brothers. Also, that said resolution be recorded in the minutes of this Assembly.

Howard Items.

H. N. Hoy, of Bellefonte, is a student in Prof. Hockenberry's High School.

The rod mill is idle this week on account of a disagreement in regard to wages.

Wm. Confer has become the tonsorial artist of this place. His assistant John Wagner, is a daisy on a shave.

Miss Mary Canda, of this place, has secured a position in Montgomery's tailoring establishment, at Bellefonte.

Miss Amy Kline, one of the most accomplished young ladies of this place, and an excellent teacher has over forty scholars in her select school.

Prof. J. Coulter Hockenberry, of W. Va., who has opened a Normal School here, is spoken of as an excellent educator.

The Howard Post, G. A. R, is going to have an entertainment and Camp fire in the near future. Several nobby articles of furniture will be contested for at the same time.

Dead Men on Juries.

Attention was called by the Court this week to the selection of jurors. Among other mistakes is that of putting dead men in the panel of jurors. This has occurred and don't seem at all proper. Dead men have never been known to appear, no matter how much they are summoned If the court was made up of spiritualists it might be quite appropriate. The spirits of the departed, with the fuller knowledge which they have obtained, might serve on juries with great skill and justice. But we fear the plan, if tried, would not "pan out" well. Besides, men of legal minds, while spiritually inclined, don't seem to believe in spiritualism as a doctrine, and are even now trying Miss Diss Debarr, in New York, for something of the sort.

So the Court advised the officers who draw the jurors to strike off any name which appeared in the list if the owner of the name has gone to the abode of spirits.

—That mock court which has been announced will be held on Monday evening of next week in Y. M. C. A. hall. The case to be tried will be one of breach of promise. It will be full of interest, the fair one whose feelings have been lacerated by the refusal of the heart masher to marry her estimating the damages at $19,000. Of course, there is nothing in the case, but the lady and the District Attorney (Francis Speer) have concocted it, the District Attorney expecting to appropriate about $10,000 of the amount to himself. But this scheme of his will be defeated and all his questionable plans exposed. This, we believe, will close the career of the district attorney.

—Mr. Michael Runkle has been appointed by the Court as one of the tipstaves. The appointment is a most excellent one. Mr. Runkle was a soldier and lost his right arm in defense of his country. This recognition of the services of one who suffered in the discharge of the highest possible duty is most appropriate. Mr. Runkle will make a most excellent tip-stave, and we congratulate him and the Court on the appointment.

—There are three substitutes, this week, in the roll of teachers of the public schools. Mrs. J. C. Harper is teaching for Miss Annie McCaffrey, until after the funeral of Miss McC's mother. Miss Mollie Pyle is teaching Miss Lizzie Bottorf's school, Miss B. being at the bedside of her brother, who is dangerously ill. Miss Jennie Shortlidge is teaching the school of her sister, Miss Lizzie Shortlidge, the latter being ill.

—People who are building new residences should include in their plans plenty of porch room. There is nothing which makes a large house look more comfortable and homelike than the spacious porches. For this reason, Mr. George Valentine's house has always been to us a picture of comfort, to a greater extent than some more costly houses that do not have so large a supply of porch room.

—At the quarries of the Cambria Iron Company several pop blasts were put off on Saturday afternoon. One of them sent a stone in the direction where four men were standing. It struck James Crowell on the temple, the blow being fatal. Two Russians named Gusha were hurt by it, though not seriously.

Obituary.

William H. Loveland, of Lamar, Clinton county, Pa., died April 17th, aged 30 years and 8 months. The funeral took place on Thursday, the 19th, at 2 o'clock p. m., Rev. George Warren, of Salona, officiating, using for his text the twenty-third chapter and part of the tenth verse of Numbers: "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his." He leaves a wife and one child. The pall bearers were L. E. Blakeslee, J. J. McClintick, H. A. Walker, W. I. Watson, J. T. Stephenson and John Stephenson. On the coffin was a silver plate bearing the inscription, "At Rest," and well it might be said for he had been a devout member of the M. E. church for sixteen years. A large concourse of weeping friends followed the remains to the cemetery to rest beneath the clods of the valley until the final resurrection.

His favorite hymn was,

My faith looks up to thee,
Thou lamb of calvary,
Savior divine.
Now hear me while I pray;
Take all my guilt away;
O, let me from this day
Be wholly thine."

—Mrs. Magdalena, relict of Philip Hoover, an old time resident of Tyrone, died on Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of her son Samuel at Hannah Furnace, this county, aged 73 years. She leaves two brothers, Henry and John Greenawalt, who reside on Shaver's Creek, in Huntingdon county, and four sons—Samuel, of Hannah furnace; Philip, of Prescott, Arizona; John, of Houtzdale, and Alexander of Julian Furnace; also a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Henry Hoover, of near Tyrone, beside many grand-children. Funeral services were held at her late residence Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment in Tyrone cemetery.

—The engagement of Louise Arnot and company in Humes' Hall, last week, was eminently successful. It ended on Saturday evening, the concluding comedy being the new and popular "Fun on the Bristol." The Widow O'Brien of Louise Arnot was a delightful piece of character acting. We can say of the entire company that it is the best ever brought to Bellefonte. The people who compose it are excellent artists while their performances are moral, clean and chaste. Not by word or sign, on the stage, during their stay, was there the least evidence of anything even questionable.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of rheumatism of six years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Belleville, O., affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at J. ZELLER & SON'S drug store.

—Willie Parks, a son of Mr. William Parks, who lives at the Gatesburg bank, died on Sunday morning of diphtheria. We hear that the little boy, who is only 4 years old, met with an accident six weeks ago, one of the blades of a pair of scissors entering his eye. He suffered very much from the accident and received medical treatment for it. This, doubtless, aggravated the disease. The funeral took place last Monday in the Catholic church.

The committee decided to hold a banquet at Huntingdon on the second Tuesday in June.

—There are perhaps more than the usual number of bad cases before the court this term. The most severe punishment should be visited upon the fellows—and fellowesses, too—who demean themselves and take up the time of court with the crimes which are really too low and degrading to be published in a decent newspaper.

—Wm. K. Ludwig, who was in the employ of H. K. Hicks & Bro. for nearly seven years, is now, we are glad to learn, with the new firm of H. A. McKee & Bro. Mr. Ludwig is acknowledged to be a practical hardware man. We wish the new firm success.

ANNEXATION OF CANADA.

The Disastrous Attempt to accomplish it by Force—A Famous Retreat.

The present agitation concerning the relations between Canada and the United States recalls the time when the annexation of that country was proposed to be brought about by force of arms. The project was entrusted to the brave Gen. Montgomery, assisted by the famous patriots, Colonels Ethan Allen and Seth Warner. While engaged in this invasion Ethan Allen was taken prisoner by the British and sent to England where he experienced very harsh treatment.

It was Colonel Warner who twice conducted his men safely home, though the march was constantly surrounded by dangers. Once Montgomery sent them home because their time was out, and though they were willing to continue in service, they were without sufficient clothing, and none could be had in that country.

Colonel Warner had hardly arrived home before he heard that Montgomery had been killed, and the cause, as well as the lives of the men, were put in great jeopardy. He collected his men again and at once started for Canada to assist his countrymen in their extremity. But his efforts were of no avail, and it was soon found necessary to take up the line of retreat.

It was the dead of winter, and only necessity sanctioned moving the troops. The terror of pursuit and the rigor of the season furnished sufficient cause for alarm and haste. Colonel Warner remained with the rear of the army, and aided them in many ways most effectually, as he was a man well posted in caring for the sick and this knowledge now came into excellent use.

He must keep the army in motion, not a day must be lost and yet he was without any chest of medicines. But he understood the medicinal use of roots and herbs, and of proper care at critical times, and with these allies, he made an effectual fight against disease among his men.

When Ticonderoga was reached and the roll called, thanks to Seth Warner, but few vacancies in the ranks appeared.

Col. Warner saved the lives of hundreds of men in this way, and he did a noble work, but remained for his namesake, H. H. Warner, head of Warner's Safe Cure establishment, to give the same kind of remedies then used to the people of to-day, in "Warner's Log Cabin Remedies." These remedies have been adopted after thorough trial and investigation, and they are remedies of an established reputation. Being wholly vegetable they can be used without any fear as to the results.

Among the new remedies is a Sarsaparilla for the blood, Hops and Buchu for the Stomach and digestion, Cough and Consumption Remedy, Scalpine for the head and hair, Rose Cream for that terrible disease, catarrh, a Log Cabin Liver Pill, a Log Cabin Plaster and an extract for internal and external use. Our readers may rest assured that there is merit in every article.

—The Philipsburg Daily Journal asks where there is another daily paper in a country town which contains as much local news as it does? We always like to give information where it is possible, and would answer that the Tyrone Daily Herald may be cited as at least one paper that is its equal in this respect. For proof, consult the number now on our table—Monday, April 23.

Food Adulteration.

The question of Food Adulteration is now occupying public attention more than ever before, and organizations are being formed in almost every state to prevent the sale of adulterated food and drink. The following letter voluntarily given, speaks volumes for the purity of Speer's Port Gape Wine:

N. Y., June 3, 1884.

MR. ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J.

Dear Sir:—The result of my investigations of your Wines convinces me that they are perfectly pure and free from foreign or deleterious substances. The best I have ever tasted, and is all that can be desired in a pure Port wine. The Unfermented is especially nourishing, and where the action of alcohol is not required it is well adapted for invalids. I speak as a physician. Your Pedro Brandy fills a want long felt in the profession for pure brandy can only be obtained with great difficulty.

—On Thursday evening of last week there was a wedding at the residence of Rev. P. McArdle, pastor of the Roman Catholic church. It was solemnized at 8.30 o'clock. A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus write W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C.—Get a free trial bottle at J. ZELLER & SON'S drug store.

—Mrs. John Rider, of Tyrone, died of heart disease on Saturday night. She was 22 years of age and leaves a husband and one child. Her remains were brought to Pine Grove, in this county, where the funeral took place Tuesday morning.

A Beautiful Seal Skin Cloak

is a becoming garment to a lady. If she has an elastic step, an air of grace and modesty, and the glow of health on her cheek, she will always command admiration. Without these, no woman can appear to advantage. With sickly countenance, painful gait, and listless air, she is an object of pity. How many American women daily drag out a wretched existence, ignorant of the blessing of perfect health. Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. The best months in which to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, are

March April May

At no other season is the body so much in need of, or so susceptible to the benefit to be derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla and you will be convinced that it is the ideal spring medicine.

The Ice Of Steam.

The toughest beef is soonest reached through the stomach. The man who ate a boiled crow was asked how he liked it, and answered: "I can worry it down, but don't hanker after it." The head of many a family where this paper is read, sits down daily to a meal of crow. Soggy potatoes, and vegetables with all the flavor boiled out of them, meats tough as leather, and with about as much sweetness. They worry it down, but hanker for something eatable. Dyspepsia, indigestion and ill temper are never seen in families that use the Model Steam Cooker. See illustration. It fits any stove, and will cook a whole meal for the family with fire that would keep a teakettle boiling. It will saves cost in any family in three months in the saving of fuel, and food, to say nothing of health and temper preserved. The Model Cooker Co., 74 Park Row, New York, want agents in every county to help sell these wonderful Cooker, and any one wishing permanent remunerative employment should write to them at once for full particulars.

The Best Local Paper in the County

This is not brag.

It is a plain statement of an honest fact.

Ordinarily the weekly issue of a daily paper is esteemed to be merely a digest of the week's news, suited alone for rural readers.

This is not true in reference to the WEEKLY PRESS.

It is especially edited by a trained corps of writers selected for the purpose of making the best paper.

It is adapted to the improvement and enjoyment of both sexes, of all ages, of every family, whether a resident of the city, village or country.

Not a word of crime or impure suggestion in any part of the paper.

It is an old paper and carries its age and reputation equally well.

We will send the WEEKLY PRESS, subscription one year, $1.00, and REPUBLICAN, subsciption one year, $2.00, both, one year, one subscription price, $2.00.

We make this unexceptional proposition in order that the Weekly Press and REPUBLICAN may go on trial in every household in this county for an entire year.

Sample copies furnished free on application. Address.

A Meeting in June.

The Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias of the World will convene in regular biennial session at Cincinnati, O., June 12th, 1888, and remain in session about two weeks.

It is needless to say that the recurrence of this meeting is the most important event, as well as the most interesting occasion, in the history of the brotherhood. Knights from every quarter of the land will be present, and both the public and private ceremonies will be impressive, imposing, and interesting.

In order to place the opportunity of attendance within the power of as many members of the Order as possible, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell, from June 7th to June 11th, excursion tickets to Cincinnati, valid for the return trip until July 2d inclusive, at one limited fare for the round trip.

Full and particular details as to time of trains, and complete arrangements for the movement of large bodies of Knights may be procured by addressing

THOMAS E. WATT,
Pass. Agt. Western District,
110 Fifth Avenue,
Pittsburg.

—Tuesday morning a large and terrible rat appeared on the street somewhere in the vicinity of Wilkinson's China Store. The Colonel appeared on the scene and with a glance took in the thrilling situation. He selected a stone and elevating it in his arms hurled it at the rodent. The aim was straight, the stone went direct to the mark and the rat, oh, where was it? Well, to tell the truth, his ratship didn't seem to mind the missile at all, but scampered off with as much freedom as if nothing weightier than a straw had been in its pathway.

—The funeral of Andrew Crozier occurred at 2.30 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. The services were held in the Episcopal church. The church was well filled with men, most of whom are members of the K. of L. The

—It will be a month yet before the picnic season is ushered in.

—Twenty-six snow falls was a pretty good record for the past winter.

—The advance guard of the circus has not yet put in appearance here.

—The refreshing rains have fallen in seasonable time to benefit the wheat.

—Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., has been invited to deliver the Memorial day oration in Bloomsburg, and will probably accept.

—Soon the hammock will swing in the grape arbor, until it breaks beneath the weight of two individuals who try to occupy the place intended only for one.

—The centennial of Episcopal Methodism in Huntingdon county will be celebrated at the First Methodist Episcopal church in that county's capital in September.

—A very handsome wainscoting is being put on the entrance to the second story to the Arcade building. The stairway will correspond with it in elegance, the stairs being oak and the risers chestnut.

—It consumes five months of the time of the borough council and millions of dollars worth of l gal talent to rid the streets of Bellefonte of a five-cent nuisance. The nuisance is still "holding the fort."

—The flouring mill of Rumbaugh & Brinker at Greensburg, was burned Wednesday morning. Loss, $15,000; uninsured. The account books worth $8,000 were also burned. Origin of fire unknown.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has decided on a material reduction in the number of men employed at the shops in Altoona where, it is expected 600 men will be dropped out of a force of 5,700.

—The business office of the Centre Democrat has been moved to a room on the second floor, of Reynolds' bank building, over MaGee's law office. The removal, of course, carries with it Frank Bible, Esq, attorney-at-law.

—Brinton, Duncan & Barnes are a very enterprising firm now keeping Philipsburg alive. They intend, soon, to erect another brick business block on Pine street, which will be occupied by a wholesale grocery firm.

—A high board fence is being erected between the turnpike and the furnace plant of the Centre Iron Company, hiding the works from view and rendering it less likely that horses passing along the road will frighten at the commotion and stir naturally caused by the furnace when in operation.

—The celebration of the sixty-ninth anniversary of Odd Fellowship in the United States takes place this week in Williamsport, and it is expected to attract thousands of people to that city. There will be a grand parade on Thursday, the 26th. About three thousand men and thirty bands are expected to be in the parade.

—Francis Murphy, the great temperance advocate, who has been exhorting for a week past before immense crowds in the Moody tabernacle in Louisville, on Tuesday morning undertook a special mission. He tackled the Louisville base ball club, and as a result every member of the club signed the pledge and the club managers regard their nine as sure winners now.

—On Thursday there was a committee of the Tyrone school board in town.—They came, principally, to visit the new school house and inspect the system of heating used there. They were—W. H. Carothers, T. E. Heims, W. T. Cannon and A. L. Mattern. While here they visited both school buildings. We understand that they were very favorably impressed with the ventilation and other details of the new building.

—The whistle on the Collins Brothers furnace is the most powerful in this vicinity. If the air is not disturbed it can be heard, when blown at its full power, a distance of eight miles. Now it is not blown at more than half the power of which it is capable, but the noise at the furnace, when the whistle is sounding, is quite deafening. It is heard very distinctly in town and can be heard at Waddles, several miles distant up the Buffalo Run railroad.

—Here is what an enterprising western paper, the Angora Kicker, says of its present and prospective circulation: "Two more subscribers have come in since our last issue and paid us for a year in advance. This swells our list to 37 bona fide subscribers, and people who sneered at our claim that we would have a list of 5,000 within a year are beginning to sing small. The London Times had to have 37 subscribers before it got 5,000. We shall next week put forth the claim of the largest circulation west of Omaha."

—The death of Irene Caldwell, the young daughter of Mr. Johnny Caldwell, which occurred on Wednesday morning, was indeed very sad. She was a bright and lovable child, aged 7 years and 4 months. She suffered a long time with that dread disease, dyphtheria, and then passed away in the early spring time, the bright bud of promise being transplanted to the celestial conservatory above, to receive that care and perfect growth which the Great Husbandman of souls alone can give. The funeral took place at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

—Hon. Edward Shaw, of Altoona, will deliver the Memorial day address in Tyrone.

—The trains on the several railroads extending to this place are running on excellent time just now.

—It is said that the store at the Nail Works is doing an excellent business under its new administration.

—Be very careful in walking on the railroad. There is constant danger there, especially for people who are old or deaf.

—Naturalist's say that some birds are constitutionally melancholy. Because they can only take a bird's sigh view of the world, probably.

—Newspapers of this section are reminding their readers that one year ago on Wednesday, the 18th, snow fell to the depth of one foot.

—A. C. Rankin, of Pittsburg, who delivered a series of temperance lectures here, is now in Mifflintown, Pa., where he is addressing large audiences.

—The right of way for a railroad down the Tuscarora Valley, Juniata county, has been secured over nearly all of the property between Peru Mills and Reed's Gap.

—An election for president and directors of the Beech Creek Railroad Company will be held at the office of that company at Jersey Shore, on Monday, May 7th.

—Some of the boys who go to Humes' Hall and occupy the front seats are entirely too fond of expectorating tobacco extract to be entirely agreeable to the audience.

—We are informed that Mr. Daniel Garman expects to erect a brick business block west of his residence on High street, taking in part of the south wing of the house.

—The gold badge which Mr. Clevan Dinges wears on his breast is very peculiar in shape. We shall never consider it appropriate as we think too highly of Cleve for that.

—Mitchell, who was a student at the State College, and has developed into an excellent base ball pitcher, has signed with the Portland, Maine, club in the New England League.

—Workmen are still employed in the Arcade building finishing the interior in handsome style. The second floor is divided into admirable apartments, suitable for business offices.

—The miners of the Westmoreland and Penn Gas Coal company have accepted the terms offered by the company, and entered into a contract to work at the rates for one year.

—Rt. Rev. M. A. DeWolf Howe, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Central Pennsylvania, will remove to Bristol, R. I., with his family, in June, it is announced in an exchange.

—Old Man Winter continues to linger in the lap of Spring, but we know Gentle Annie well enough to guess she is not altogether pleased with his lingering and some day she will bounce him.

—The flouring mill of Rumbaugh & Brinkner at Greensburg, was burned Wednesday morning. Loss, $15,000; uninsured. The account books, worth $8,000, were also burned. Origin of fire unknown.

—J. Merrill Linn, of Union county, and Samuel Woods, of Mifflin county, have been selected to go as delegates to the National convention. George Hutchinson, of Huntingdon county, is the candidate for elector.

—A gentleman named Harbach, living in Millheim, was attacked by highway robbers one day of this week, while riding through the Brush Valley narrows. He frightened them with a revolver and the pluck to use it.

—The case of the State vs. John E. DuBois, for the collection of the collateral inheritance tax of about $130,000 on the estate of the late John DuBois, was argued in an appeal before the Supreme Court in Philadelphia last Wednesday. Mr. DuBois was represented by Solicitor General George A. Jenks.

—Major W. L. Dewart, a prominent citizen and well known Democratic leader living in Sunbury, died suddenly of heart disease at an early hour on Thursday morning. Major Dewart was a delegate to the National conventions which nominated Pierce, Buchanan, Douglass and Cleveland, and was a member of the Thirty-fifth Congress.

—John W. Johnson who was convicted as the murderer of Isaiah Culvey, but never sentenced, and whom Shaffer said had no part in that tragedy, has not been granted a new trial nor has he been refused one, by the Clinton County Court. Those who were present at the trial expected an acquittal on the grounds of insufficiency of evidence. The action of the Court in this case is causing grave comments.

—The miners of the Westmoreland and Penn Gas Coal Companies held a meeting at Irwin Tuesday to take action upon the answer of the companies in regard to the proposition of the men not to enter into a contract for a year, though they would accept the rate for mining offered. About one thousand miners attended, and when the companies insisted on the yearly contract a very lively discussion ensued. A vote resulted in the acceptance of the companies' terms for a year.

SOME DOCTORS

honestly admit that they can't cure Rheumatism and Neuralgia. Others say they can but—don't. Ath-lopho-ros says nothing but—cures. That's the secret of its success. Years of trial have proved it to be a quick, safe, sure cure.

In my own family Athlophoros was used as a last resort, the near having suffered from rheumatism for years and having been treated for the disease by different physicians in this State and Massachusetts without even temporary relief. Upon my recommendation scores of people have used this remedy with the same results claimed for it. C. H. WILSON.

A Bellefonte merchant thus complains about the cows:

For the benefit of myself and others please notify the owners of cows that run the streets and eat up all my green groceries, that I will endure them no longer, They have done considerable damage to my cabbage. It would take a company of property holders, a few cannon and a company of cavalry to keep them away. Especially is this true of one old red cow. She is by far the worst of them all—a fiend incarnate in the shape of a cow. She goes into people's barns and overturns hen's nests and does other tricks equally bad. I have notified the high constable, and have come to the conclusion that he has a deaf ear. I now lawfully notify the owners of the cattle to pen them up within three days, or I will lock them up. I will also collect charges as I shall suffer the inconvenience no longer. If they attend to this matter they will save trouble.

—There will be a first-class orator in Renovo on Memorial day. If you doubt what we say read this from the Evening News of that place: "Governor James A. Beaver will be in Renovo on Decoration Day, May 30th, and will be the orator of the day. Bucktail Post G. A. R., No. 142, received a letter from the governor yesterday evening, which assured the veterans that he would be in Renovo on the day mentioned. The Bucktail Post has been trying to secure Governor Beaver for some time and the information of his acceptance of their invitation is received with much joy. So prominent an orator will add to the interest which is felt on Decoration Day and the people from neighboring towns will likely come to Renovo to observe the occasion."

—Because the generous nature of the tomato yields bountifully with seemingly little care and attention, the general impression prevails that the plant requires but little attention. This is a sad mistake, for there is not a vegetable in the garden that is so gross a feeder, nor one that so readily pays for all the food and care given as the tomato. To grow it to the greatest perfection, the hills should be dug out to the depth of two and a half feet; at the bottom there should be a half bushel of well rotted manure; above this let the soil be an equal mixture of loam and manure thoroughly mixed. The hills should be at least six feet apart. Let the situation be open warm, airy.

—William H. Ott, the station master at Coalport, along the line of the Jefferson and Clearfield railroad, whose disappearance some five weeks ago in connection with a three to five hundred dollar robbery of his office created a mystery of the most exciting character, has been heard from, and is located at Cleveland, Lucas county, Iowa. He claims in a letter sent to F. G. Patton, of Coalport, that he was in entire ignorance of anything connected with his disappearance, and that he had no desire to conceal a single thing or cover a single motive, but that he was out of his mind and did not know what he was doing or where he was going.

The Devil Fish Described by Hugo

Is not a more tenacious monster than malaria, whether it takes the form of chills and fever, billious remittent, ague cake or dumb ague. Like the octopus of the story it clasps the victim in its tentacula, and folds him closer and closer in a horrible embrace. Attacked with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, however, it gradually relaxes its tremendous grip, finally abandons it, and the quondam sufferer, liberated at last, rejoices in the sense of new born freedom, engendered by the restoration of complete health. Dyspepsia, too, and constipation, those old and remorseless enemies of the human family, give ground, and are finally driven from the field by this Napoleon of remedies, the greatest, the purest in the family pharmacopœia. Rheumatism succumbs to it, so do kidney troubles. The nerves, when overstrained, regain quietude and vigor by its aid, and the ability to rest tranquilly and eat with zest are increased by it. Resort to it in time and avoid unneccessary suffering.

—Tuesday evening when train 65 westbound was traveling along at a lively rate just above Drury's Run, a large deer which had made its way down the mountain, was overtaken. The deer, frightened by the engine, started to climb up the steep rocks on the mountain at that point, and when about fifteen feet up and just as the train of cars came opposite, it lost its footing and fell down the mountain onto the track in front of the engine. The poor animal's head was cut off as clean a though severed with a knife.

SAVING A CHILD'S LIFE.

A THRILLING EVENT IN THE LIVES OF TWO RAILROAD MEN.

Just outside of Lewisburg the railroad of the Montandon and Bellefonte line winds around a curve. Only a few days ago, at one o'clock p. m., the passenger train which arrives here at 4.45 was drawing out of Lewisburg and approaching this curve. The rate of speed was about 20 miles per hour.

In the engine were Fireman Pyers and Engineer Cherry. The former was bending forward, giving his attention to the fire in the engine. While he was doing this he felt the engine reversed and knew that it was being stopped with desperate energy and for some urgent cause. Looking into the face of the engineer for the reason, he saw that it was as white as a sheet and the engineer was looking intently at some object forward on the track. The fireman, too, looked and saw that the object was a small child, endeavoring, though unable, to move from the track and looking at the engine with terror. The engine was yet moving rapidly and was almost upon the child. Fireman Pyers leaped from his place and ran in front of the engine. He siezed the child just as the engine was almost upon it and thus saved its life. The little one fairly leaped into his arms. It apparently realized the great danger.

Just then an older girl ran from the field near by to the railroad and heartily thanked the men for saving the life of her little charge. "Why did you leave him alone?" the firemen asked in tones of much displeasure, "I was gathering dandelions," she answered. Engineer Cherry and Fireman Pyers are extremely gratified that they discovered the child in time to save its life. Let parents and guardians be more careful of the little ones in their control

LIFE IN THE TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.

The young ladies who manipulate the business in the Telephone Exchange will not resent the title to this item when we explain that we did not mean to imply that there was ever anything like dullness in that place. We only desire to impress on people that it is, perhaps, the liveliest place in Bellefonte and is every day becoming more lively. The patrons are constantly making greater use of their instruments and a few new ones are being added, the most recent being Mr Snyder, the druggist at the State College. There are now about 170 instruments in the Exchange and when all those people begin to call at once—which they seem to sometimes—the entire and undivided attention of the young ladies is constantly required.

The busiest time in the day at the Exchange is between the hours of 9 and 12 a. m. On the instrument the drops fall thick and fast, each one indicating a new "call," and as many various requests come within five minutes time as the ordinary individual can think about in a day of 12 hours. To retain all these in their mind and to fully grasp the meaning of each request requires no ordinary mind, but one which is quick and bright, and the wonder is that the "calls" are attended to so carefully and with so much satisfaction.

A Runaway on Allegheny Street.

A very serious runaway occurred at noon on Thursday. J. Kyle McFarlane and Mr Smith, the tinner, were riding in a buggy along Allegheny street. When near the stone school house their horse frightened. Both the occupants were thrown out. McFarlane was rendered unconscious. The horse ran with the buggy into East High street. The vehicle was very badly broken.

About that Runaway.

The accident which injured J. Kyle McFarlane on Thursday at noon was an unfortunate and quite serious one. The horse which he drove was frightened by the breaking of an axle. Mr. McFarlane was thrown from the buggy near the Episcopal church. His head came in contact with some object which cut his forehead quite severely. Kyle became unconsious and remembered nothing more for some time. Mr. William Jones, who saw the horse as it ran into the Diamond, tells us that a member of the theatrical troupe jumped at the horse, caught it around the neck and skillfully threw it to the ground, holding it there until it was released from the buggy.

Kyle will soon be around again. We home he will permanently recover.

—It is well for township Supervisors to know that by a decision of the Supreme Court of this State week before last they are held responsible for any damages to life or property by reason of allowing objects that are likely to frighten well-broken, road-worthy horses, such as piles of lumber, etc., to litter the roads under their charge. The supervisors of a township in one of the Northern counties were sued for damages and had to pay for the loss of a horse and wagon, by a decision of the lower Courts. They appealed, but the Supreme Court confirmed the lower Court's action.

—Judge McPherson on Wednesday, filed an opinion in which he hold the Western Union Telegraph Company liable for tax on capital stock for combined pole and wire mileage, but exempts it from paying a tax on poles and wires owned by other corporations leased to and operated by the Wester Union, it having been shown that these corporations paid their taxes. The amount found in favor of the State is $13,800 70.

TWO DEATHS.

Mr. Andrew Crozier and Mrs. William Garbrick.

On Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, after a long illness, of consumption, Mr. Andrew Crozier, a highly respected citizen of this place, passed from the scenes of earth to the Paradise of the blessed. He was a member of the Episcopal church of this place. He leaves a family.

Mrs. William Garbrick, of Coleville, died of dropsy Friday morning. She was 46 years of age. Quite a large family survives her. The funeral services were held at her late residence at 1 o'clock p. m. on Sunday; interment at Zion.

About Gov. Beaver and His Family.

From quite an extended communication in the New York Press about Governor Beaver and family we extract only two paragraphs, relating to Mrs. Beaver and her sons.

Governor Beaver married Miss Mary McAllister, the daughter of his law partner and preceptor. She was a young lady of unusual accomplishments and a fitting life partner for a positive man like her chosen husband. Devoted to each other and their children, theirs has been an idealic household. Mrs. Beaver is domestic in her tastes, and as a hostess is most engaging and cordial in manner. Next winter a series of receptions will be given at the Executive Mansion.

In the education of his children Governor Beaver is exercising great care and a high order of common sense. Each boy is given a stated allowance, out of which he must defray his personal expenses. Thus thay are taught the valuable lesson of personal responsibility. Gilbert is a manly youth, and is being educated in the State College, near his home in Bellefonte. Hugh and Thomas are attending Seiler's Academy in Harrisburg.

An Unwelcome Visitor.

On Wednesday night, about 10 o'clock, some one went into the kitchen of Dr. Robert Hayes' residence and found a man asleep on the floor. He was intoxicated and was enjoying the sleep, if not of the just of the tolerable comfort which the pleasant temperature of the kitchen induced. So the Doctor communicated with Officer Garis who soon had the intruder awakened and was leading him to the lockup. The man had on neither coat or hat, and these articles of clothing were afterwards found in the yard. He had taken it for granted, we presume, that the house was his regular nightly lodging place and had proceeded to rest in the regulation style. The Doctor is not averse to entertaining angels unawares, but objects to entertaining intoxicated men in the kitchen, unawares or other wise.

—It was not only in this country that the snows of last winter were costly to railroads, but in Europe also they were equally severe. In view of this, a Hungarian has recommended the planting of a peculiarly hardy kind of rose bushes along each side of the track. The kind he recommends grow six or seven feet high and he believes they will protect the tracks from great drifts of snow and also be ornamental in the summer time. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company will probably take advantage of this plan, as it appreciates the inconvenience of snow drifts and is also progressive and tasteful in providing ornamentation for its lines.

—Vice President McLeod, of the Reading Railroad, has issued a circular letter to the heads of the various departments stating that, if the old employes can be taken back without violating the rules published by the company on December 24, 1887, they should be re-employed. The heads of departments are authorized to take this course, and Mr. McLeod says that both President Corbin and himself believe that all such questions should be construed liberally, and that if the men do not belong to any union and promise to be loyal to the company they should be taken back.

Brilliant Performance Friday Evening.

There was a great deal of fun in Humes' Hall, on Friday night, produced by superior comedy talent. "Our Bad Boy" cannot boast of much plot, but it has enough to give the opening scene an interest to the end. The succession of pranks and schemes into which the bad boy inveigles and terrorizes all about him is the feature of the performance. Louise Arnot was the mischievous boy who really did some good in the world. After he had heroically saved a life he made love just as all of them do. It is needless to refer at length to Miss Arnot. She is an acknowledged actress, and those who saw her as the "Bad Boy" may well wonder how she can play "Lucretia Borgia." But she can in a way to show great versatility of talent. She is active, lithe and graceful in person. Davenport Bebus, as the bad boy's pa, was an important character and he played the part with excellent effect.

Misses Georgia Lester, Grace Nagle and Jennie Bebus are actresses of merit. The same ability may be credited to the other gentlemen, Messrs. T. W. Hannon, Henry Saylor, Horace James, R. Pope Cooke, Chas. Layler, James Chelsea, G. V. Brooke, and D. R. Whipple, who went through their roles very satisfactorily.

Railroads and Domestic Animals.

One of the most prolific sources of grievance to the railroad company, and certainly in the thickly populated portions of the country a cause of considerable loss, is the encroachment of domestic animals on their tracks. Daily, cows, pigs, sheep or horses are killed by passing trains and the railroad companies are heavily burdened by the loss sustained in the collection of damages. Why would it not be advisable and profitable to take measures to prevent such destruction?

The railroad companies must take the initiative in this, because the loss falls on them. A plan long pursued has been to protect the track by some sort of a fence on either side of the track. But would not the suggestion made elsewhere in this paper be better? Let the railroad company plant hardy, large rose bushes along the track. If these should grow six or seven feet high and very thick, as it is said they will, they will be a source of protection in every way and be very ornamental.

—Large number of counterfeit five dollars silver notes have been discovered in circulation in different parts of the country within the past few days. The most obvious details are these: The scroll work surrounding the V is badly done, the ruling of the stamped paper is crude, ending abruptly, instead of running into the paper gently and the portrait lacks a life-like expression. In the genuine bill, a key on the seal has a notch shaped like a letter T whereas in the counterfeit it is straight like an I. As yet we have not heard of any of the counterfeits being in circulation in Bellefonte

—The season of the year is now with us when the thrifty housewife will not be satisfied until she has thoroughly renovated the above of mortal man from the apex of the roof even unto the bottom of the cellar thereof. Now is the time of the sore discontent to the husband of one wife, and if he had two he would be sure to get a double dose of misery, for if one woman is a terror, when armed with her house cleaning paraphernalia, two would certainly be a dire calamity, should they decide upon revolution at one and the same time.

JAS. H. DOBBINS, P. M.

—At about 10:30 o'clock a. m. on Tuesday the Prohibition party of this county met in county convention in the Court House, in obedience to the call of Chairman Zeigler. They had intended to hold an afternoon session, also, but because of the non-arrival of the speaker, Hon. A. A. Stevens, all the business of the convention was transacted in the morning. Rev. M. B. Laning presided as chairman. The principal business transacted was to appoint a committee whose business it will be to elect delegates to the State Convention.

—Our friends of the Tyrone Daily Herald said in their issue of Friday: The Bellefonte DAILY NEWS has entered upon its ninth volume giving every evidence of prosperity and a long lease of life. The NEWS is one of the best institutions of Bellefonte and we are glad to know that the people of the centre of the universe are giving it the support and encouragement it so well deserves.

—A wrestling match has been made between Samuel Taylor, of Philipsburg, who is the champion middle weight of Pennsylvania, and William Tylor, a noted wrestler of Brisbin, to wrestle catch as catch can, best three in five for one hundred dollars a side. The winner is to receive seventy-five per cent. of the gate receipts. The match is to come off in Brisbin hall on May 17th, and George Roads has been selected as final stake holder. The men are now preparing to enter into careful training and an interesting contest is anticipated.

Why Not Free Delivery?

The question occurs to us, "Why does not Bellefonte have the free delivery of mail?" It is given to any community whose postal business exceeds $10,000 per year, and we are convinced that the postal business of Bellefonte exceed that figure. Less ambitious communities than this are asking for it with the expectations of obtaining it, among which is Philipsburg. Huntingdon obtained it a year ago.

It is not a great inconvenience to the people of this place to go to the post-office for their mail, partly, perhaps, because of its central location, and we have not heard any objections to it, but the added facilities of free delivery would be at least some convenience which would be appreciated. The point is, that if other less deserving communities have it, Bellefonte must not be left out of the procession.

—One of the greatest drawbacks to business prosperity among the general class of tradesmen, says an exchange, is the onerous credit system—a system that should be promptly abolished and consigned to oblivion, the quicker the better for all. If all would pay cash there would be no need for a credit system, and book-keeping for merchants and tradesmen would become one of the lost arts, and one which they could very easily afford to lose without injury, but to their great advantage. With large sums of idle money seeking investment, the man who owes should do the borrowing instead of the man to whom the money belongs, and it is not right to make the merchants and tradesmen borrow in order to keep up their business, and pay interest on money owing them. Let the cash system be adopted, and then losses will be few, for men will not buy unless they can pay, and goods and wares can be bought more cheaply than under the credit system.

—In a communication relative to enforcing Sunday laws in Tyrone, J. W. Thomas, the burgess says: "Law, facts, reason and common sense will govern my actions." We doubt if a burgess or other executive of the laws has a right to base his actions on such a platform. He must be guided entirely by law and facts. Of course, he may allow reason to influence his actions in the way of mercy in one case and extreme punishment in another. But what he terms common sense he has nothing to do with, for what he would term "common sense" may seem quite uncommon sense to another. For instance, there are persons who do not believe in Sunday laws at all, and consider them all nonsense. To them, common sense would be entirely against their enforcement. Of course, we suppose Burgess Thomas is not built according to that distorted plan, but no one has a right to trust to what he considers "common sense" in interpeting the law.

Approaching Arbor Day.

Arbor day, as appointed by the Governer of this Commonwealth, falls on Friday, 27th inst., and each individual should in some manner encourage tree planting. There are many reasons why Arbor Day should be observed, the foremost being on account of the rapid disappearance of the forests and especially in Central Pennsylvania; second, every tree, shrub or vine is a beautifier, and some day will bring forth its harvest.

The Philadelphia Sunday Times struck a plan to emulate the children to participate in this spring festival more freely by asking each one who plants a tree on or about Arbor Day to send his or her name, together with the number of trees, shrubs, vines, etc., planted, to that journal for publication in its next issue following the day mentioned.

—The House judiciary committee, through Mr. Stewart, of Georgia, has reported a bill providing for the construction of two United States penitentiaries, and the sites to be selected by the Attorney General and Secretary of the Interior, one to be north and the other south of the thirty-ninth degree of latitude. The penitentiaries are to be used for the confinement of United States convicts sentenced to imprisonment for more than one year, and the cost of each building is not to exceed $500,000.

Millheim's Centennial.

This year is the Centennial of the founding of Millheim, and it is proposed to celebrate the event in magnificent style on the Fourth of July. A meeting will be held in that borough this evening to make the proper preparations. A programme of exercises for the occasion has already been outlined, and we advise our friends in that lively town to go ahead and make it a really notable affair.

—Exceilent features of the Louise Arnot entertainments are—that she is a finished and brilliant actress and her support is very fine. This evening the performance will be "Fun on the Bristol," which is her very best comedy and is full of sprightly dancing and pleasing music.

New Coal Mines.

Quite a surprise was given to some of our leading coal operators the other day, says the Philipsburg Journal, when a discovery of an excellent quality of coal of good thickness was made on the property of Judge Munson near the cold stream dam. Active mining operations are now going on as rapidly as possible and a large quantity of coal is being taken out daily. The largest vein is four feet in thickness and of a very superior quality. Heretofore it was asserted by experienced coal operators and others who thought they knew that the land in the vicinity of cold stream was destitute of any mineral wealth, but the enterprise of Judge Munson shows how erroneous their opinions were. There are a number of smaller veins on the tract, which consists of one hundred and sixty acres. No shipments of the coal has been made to any great distance, but when the output justifies it, regular shipments will be commenced. The Judge is to be congratulated on his successful venture.

—A new use for the opened umbrella has just been discovered. It is to use in lieu of a whip. Mr. Frank Bible adopts the style and all the faithful must follow suit. On Thursday he drove up High street across the Diamond. His erect figure and open umbrella behind the prancing nag were picturesque, and the climax of skill in driving was reached when he bent gracefully forward and jabbed the animal, in the part nearest the buggy, with his opened umbrella. It was done quickly and the effect on the horse was instantaneous and irresistible.

"Untold Agony from Catarrh."

PROF. W. HAUSNER, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

THOMAS J. RUSHING, Esq., 2902 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

ELI ROBBINS, Runyan P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

JUSTICE ON THE BENCH.

CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS BROUGHT BEFORE THE COURT—MANY CASES TRIED—THE GUILTY AND ACQUITTED

The three judges of court (each one has gray hair and beard) were on the bench when court called Monday morning. When petitions were called for, Mr. Reeder was the first to appear with many petitions.

William Henry Booth, who lives, we believe, in Snow Shoe, swore to give up his allegiance to all foreign princes and potentates and to become a citizen of the United States.

Mr. Love and Mr. Chambers presented petitions.

Officers of court for the year were announced by the Court—Bart Galbraith, court crier; Messrs. Foster and Runkle tip-staves.

Ed. Chambers and Charles Hewes argued a legal point. The court room rapidly filled and by 10.30 o'clock there was a fair representation of the citizens of Centre county.

Clem. Dale, Esq., had a great deal to say to the Court in the way of important business, which was rapidly dispatched.

A CASE OF LARCENY IN BRUSH VALLEY.

When the Court began on Monday afternoon the names of the grand juriors were called. Quite a number did not answer to their names.

After Wm. P. Lucas, merchant, of Howard borough, had been chosen foreman and the court had given them a few necessary instructions they filed into the Grand Jury room. Among the instructions he gave them were that they were not to try the cases—only to hear evidence; they can summon as many of the witnesses as they choose; all their proceedings shall be kept secret. The secrecy is for their own protection and is to be perpetual.

The names of the Traverse jurors were called. The Court received numerous requests to excuse either Grand or Traverse jurors for sickness or because of business engagements. Sickness which prevents the juror from fulfilling the duties of the position is the only excuse which would be accepted.

At quarter to 3 o'clock a jury was called from the list of traverse jurors, and they stepped forward into the elevated and prominent jury box. The case called was that of John H. Stover vs. Frank B. Stover. Mr. Keller stated that it was an action in which there was no issue, and it required only a calculation as to the amount to be paid on a note. He asked a verdict of $728.85. So they all said, though not a member of the jury said a word or assisted in any way to fix the amount.

While Court was waiting for the Grand Jury to return a bill of indictment the district attorney went over the list of criminal cases and helped the court to settle many of them. The Grand Jury appeared at 3.30 o'clock, but their bill of indictment was incorrect and they retired to correct it.

John Cough, who was charged with the larceny of a belt from a saw mill in Brush Valley, was brought into court and Will E. Gray offered to defend him. John does not seem to have any more mental calibre than the law permits.

Mr. Meyer said that Cough had taken the belting from Mr. Wolfort's saw mill to Logansville in November last. He admitted it before the justice.

Mr. Wolfort said that his saw mill is on Elk creek. He related the circumstances of the theft. John Cough is sometimes called "Whipcracker," because he used to go around the country cracking a long whip.

Aaron L. Bartges, of Logansville, Clinton county, was the man to whom John Cough brought the belting. Mr. Bartges refused to buy it, deeming it worthless. He testified that he did not consider the defendant of sound mind. Mr. Bartges admitted that the defendant had purchased pocket knives at his store.

W. J. Carlin, of Rebersburg, was called as a witness. He is a justice of the peace. He said that the defendant admitted the theft; that he is what may usually be termed a tramp.

John Garsling also lives in Logansville. He did not know much about the defendant.

C. M. Bower was called for the defence. He had known the defendant "quite a number of years." Mr. Bower's term for him is that of a "simpleton," but he could not define his exact mental status.

Dr. John F. Harter stepped to the witness chair and said he had known the defendant for six or eight years. The Doctor believes that he values a cigar box higher than any other object.

Michael Fiedler had known him seven or eight years. His testimony about the same.

Mr. Brumgard, of Rebersburg, had known him about the same time. He considered him a man responsible for his actions.

The Commonwealth rested and Will Gray began to address the jury. He and the district attorney each had ten minutes.

NOTES ON TUESDAY MORNING.

Tuesday morning the man named John Cough, of Brush valley, was found guilty of larcency, but acquitted on the ground of insanity. He was declared a lunatic. A man named Martin Foulk was arrested in Milesburg in March last and has been in jail since, on the charge of being a tramp, and indecent exposure of person. He looks like a lunatic, will not talk and is evidently non compos. Only one witness, Charles Adams, of Milesburg testtified. The case was given to the jury without argument and the Court instructed them to find him guilty. They did so in manner and form as he stands indicted.

In empannelling the next jury there was great deal of challenging and there was danger that the list of travers jurors would become exhausted. The case called was Commonwealth vs. Andrew Tims. The defendant was arrested at State College for an indecent assault on a little girl, whose name it is unnecessary to give. The prosecutors are people of refinement who give their testimony in discharge of a public duty. In deference to the feelings of the ladies who testified we will refrain from giving their names. E. C. Chambers and W. E. Gray Esqs., were attorneys for the defence.

PUNISHING THE GUILTY AND ACQUITTING THE INNOCENT.

When the court called on Tuesday afternoon the verdict of the jury on the Andrew Tims case was given. It was guilty on the first two counts; not guilty as to the third. Later in the afternoon he was sentenced to two years and six months confinement in the Western Penitentiary.

From and Runkie, two young men from Centre Hall charged with stealing chickens, plead guilty and were sentenced to 20 day's imprisonment in the county jail, and $30 fine.

Commonwealth vs. William G. Glossner was one of the f. and b. cases. The prosecutrix, Sallie Lose, lives in Liberty township. Keller defended Glossner. He was acquitted and the county will pay the costs.

A young man whose name we believe is George Dunsman, was arrested in March last for being a tramp. He was brought into court and tried, Clement Dale defending him. The tramp was declared not guilty and county to pay the cost.

Commonwealth vs. Michael Packer, f. and b., was tried. The mother of the child was Mary Jane Price and the defendant, Michael Packer, a man about 65 years.

NOTES TAKEN ON WEDNESDAY.

Joseph Garbrick, of Centre Hall, plead guilty of theft. He was sentenced to six months imprisonment, fined and must restore the stolen goods.

The case of the Supervisors of Harris township vs. the Bellefonte and Boalsburg Turnpike company was called. It was amended so as to make the title of the plaintiff read only "Harris township."

Just at this juncture the verdict in the case of Commonwealth vs. Michael Packer was given. The jury found him guilty in manner and form as he was indicted. He was sentenced as usual in such cases.

In the case of Harris township vs. The Bellefonte and Boalsburg Turnpike Company, Dale and Keller represented the plaintiffs and Gephart the defendent. Mr. Dale, in opening the case, said that the circumstances surrounding it dates back to 1851. The township now sues the company for the dividends on fifty-seven shares of the stock which it claims to be its due, we believe from the time the separate townships of Harris and College were formed.

Death of an Esteemed Lady.

CULVER.—In Snow Shoe, Centre Co., Pa., April 12th, 1888, Mrs. Achsah Culver, in her 77th year.

Her maiden name was Stewart. She was born in Truxton, Courtland Co., New York where she passed nearly all of her long life. At the age of eighteen she was married to L. W. Culver of the same county. Three children, two sons and a daughter are left to mourn a kind and devoted mother. With the daughter, Mrs. Taylor Gunsalus, of Snow Shoe, she spent the last eight years, of her life. Mrs. Culver was, for more than fifty years, a member of the Methodist Church, though for many years was deprived of the privilege of attending public services, by the infirmities which came with age. She found pleasure in talking of the home prepared for God's children and often expressed a wish to be at rest. After her long journey sweet must be the slumber of her body in the tomb. M. M.

A Death on Monday.

Mrs. Bridget McCaffrey, of this place, died Monday morning at 10 minutes of 5 o'clock, after an illness of some duration, her condition having grown constantly weaker until the end came. It was quite a shock, through not unexpected to her family.

Mrs. McCaffrey was about 65 years of age. She was the widow of John McCaffrey, who died eleven years ago. The entire family of children numbered nine, seven of whom survive, among them being Miss Annie McCaffrey, one of Bellefonte's public school teachers. Patrick McCaffrey, a son, lives in Lock Haven.

—Bishop Howe, of the Harrisburg Diocese of the Episcopal church, has been at Gettysburg surveying the location for the long-contemplated memorial church. If nothing prevents, the structure, which is to cost probably $50,000, will be begun in a few weeks, and the corner-stone is to be laid on July 1st. Episcopal Bishops from North and South will participate in the ceremonies.

A New Trial for John W. Johnson.

On Saturday morning Judge Mayer rendered his decision granting a new trial to John W. Johnson for the murder of the Culveys. It will not take place in May, but the date for the new trial will be fixed at that time. The Judge passes over and dismisses the thirteen reasons assigned by the prisoner's counsel for a new trial, and grants it for the additional reason that, while deliberating in the jury room, they read a newspaper article concerning the trial. In this connection the Judge says:

"The defendant in a criminal case must be tried according to the evidence. To this the jury are bound by their oaths, and while the jury may have, no doubt, inadvertently probably without sufficient experience in matters of this kind, read the article referred to, it is impossible to determine what influence it may have had upon them when they came to deliberate upon the verdict. Independently of all authorities upon the subject, it is manifest that the finding of a jury should be the result of their impartial and unprejudiced judgments, according to the evidence. (Yates J., 4 Binney 155.) It is a well settled doctrine that a paper not in evidence should not enter the jury box or be the subject of their consideration. The reasons for this are obvious and to sanction a contrary doctrine would be to allow the jury to make laws unto themselves subject to no control, and he swayed by the prejudices of the popular will. And more especially should this doctrine be rigidly adhered to when the life of a human being is hanging in the balance."

Rhetoricals in the High School.

The usual interesting and profitable exercises took place on Friday afternoon in the Bellefonte High School. Jennie Powers began with her essay entitled, "Think." Number 2 was a recitation entitled, "A Model Church," by Florence Longacre. Samuel Rowe's essay on "Common Brick" was quite brief. Very good was Bernice Moore's recitation, "The Fireman." George McC. Potter declaimed, "Opposite Examples" in his usually good style. May Woodring's essay was entitled, "The Benefit of Difficulties." "Tom, the Would-be Poet," a selection abounding in humor, was recited by Stella Nolan. After Bridgie Curry's essay on "Time" Charles Garner delivered his declamation, "Young Hamlet's Fall," which was humorous and was loudly applauded. "Public Schools" was the title of Bella Barnhart's essay, "Patriotism" the theme of H. E. Jenkins' declamation, and "Autumn" gave Bessie Dorworth food for a thoughtful essay. Fannie Twitmire recited "Elsie's Easter," Anna M. Macbride essayed on the subject, "Tears" and Jennie Crittenden concluded the exercises with an excellent recitation, "What Woman Can Do."

Flora Smith, of Milesburg, was a welcome visitor.

It was a "Rumper."

A rump convention of the conferrees of the several counties in this congressional district was held in Ridgway on Friday. It was not a regular convention, because the conferrees of this county and also of Clarion county were informed that it would not be held until after the State Convention.

Three counties—Elk, Forest and Clearfield—were represented. They elected Haggerty, of Ridgway, and Kelley, of Forest county, to be delegates to the National Convention in Chicago. Mr. Truxall, of Clearfield, was selected to be the elector. Wigton, of Philipsburg, was chosen one of the alternates for delegate. The name of the other we have not learned.

—John M. Ward, the base ballist, has concluded to cast his fourtunes with the New York club again this summer. A dispatch from New York says that President Day met Ward Wednesday night and formally offered him $4,000 for the season, an advance of $1,000 over what he received last year. Ward, he said, demanded $5,000, and refused to sign. New York base ball enthusiasts were in the dumps all day in consequence, but Thursday night the announcement was made that Ward had met Day on the latter's terms, and signed a contract at $4,000. The beautiful and accomplished short stop will accordingly wear red socks this summer, as usual.

Entertained by Mr. Ford.

A golden hour in lives of silver was that in the Court House on Saturday evening to the audience who listened to Mr. S. T. Ford, the elocutionist, from New York City. He recited eight or nine excellent selections, two pathetic, the others humorous. Mr. Ford can represent any emotion or peculiarity with tenderly pathetic or irresistibility humorous effect. Alternate tears and smiles influence those who listen.

The attendance was reasonably good and we doubt not that the reading fund of the Y. M. C. A., for the benefit of which the entertainment was intended, was substantially benefitted.

—Mr. W. L. Foster, the enterprising merchant, is conducting the mercantile business on quite an extensive scale at Lemont and also at State College. His two stores are well filled with carefully selected supplies of goods, and he has a very large patronage. His motto seems to be that sale one for merchants—quick sales and small profits. Will is a very pleasant and popular young gentleman, always dealing on the square, which gives people the utmost confidence in him.

—The name of the gentleman who so skilfully and bravely caught the horse which ran away last week was Mr. R. Pope Cooke. It was J. Kyle McFarlane's horse, and the way in which Mr. Cooke jumped at it, caught it around the neck and threw it down caused the admiration of everybody. He held it there until it was released from the vehicle. It is a trick which Mr. Cooke learned when he was young, and although he is not so youthful now he has not forgotten any of his old-time skill. He was very useful in this instance, as it is not certain how far the horse might have gone had he not adopted this means of stopping it. Mr. Cooke is a member of the Louise Arnot Dramatic Company and is quite a pleasant gentleman.

—The highway cow continues her perambulations. She imitates the civilized customs of man by walking on the boardwalk, breaking through the boards at every step. The whole realm of nature and art belongs to her, and if she cannot force her way through the gate she can imitate the small boy in leaping over the fence. She will invade the flower beds in the yards and break down the shrubbery. Vegetables in the garden are her delight and she will be there for them as soon as the tender shoots of verdure appear above the ground. The cow is not modest, but will give proof of her presence and destructiveness by doing more damage than can be repaired with great work and expense.

—Our attention has been called to a necessary improvement. It is to the street door leading to Humes' Hall. It opens inside, whereas it should by all means open outward. This would, in the event of panic in the audience, render it much more safe. We shall not describe the possibilities which might occur in the event of many people being wedged in on the stairway when the doors are closed, but only urge this change. It is true, the doors are perhaps never closed during a performance, but the possibility that they might be renders this change very appropriate. It will add to the profitableness of the hall if this objection to it is removed.

—There is a great deal of travel over Half Moon hill nowadays.

DIED.

ZIMMERMAN.—In Central City, on Sunday morning, April 15, Raymond Clifford, infant son of Calvin and Frankie Eddy Zimmerman, aged 1 year, five months and thirteen days.

LOVELAND.—On the 17th of April, at Lamar, Clinton county, Mr. W. H. Loveland, aged 31 years.

Half of his life was spent in the service of God. His death was triumphant.

A VOICE FROM HEAVEN.

I shine in the light of God;
His likeness stamps my brow,
Through the valley of death my feet have trod,
And I reign in glory now.

No breaking heart is here,
No keen and thrilling pain,
No wasted cheek where the freq uent tear
Hath rolled and left its stain.

I have reached the joys of heaven;
I am one of the sainted band;
For my head a crown of gold is given
And a harp is in my hand.

I have learned the song they sing
Whom Jesus has set free,
And the glorious walls of heaven still ring
With my newborn melody.

No sin, no grief, no pain,
Safe in my happy home,
My fears all fled, my doubts all slain,
My hour of triumph's come!

O, friends of mortal years,
The trusted and the true,
Ye are watching still in the valley of tears,
But I wait to welcome you.

Do I forget? Oh, no!
For my memory's golden chain
Shall bind my heart to the hearts below,
Till they meet to touch again.

Each link is strong and bright
And love's electric flame
Flows freely down a river of light
To the world from whence I came.

Do you mourn when another star
Shines out from the glittering sky?
Do you weep when the raging voice of war
And the storms of conflict die?

Then why should your tears run down,
And your heart be sorely riven,
For another gem in the Saviour's crown
And another soul in heaven?
